New-York, July 19th 1833.

My dear Garrison:

Several days ago I addressed you a letter. I have not received a reply thereto - nor have I seen its receipt announced in the Liberator. Fearing that it has miscarried, I write once more.

Your notice of my engagement here was not exactly correct. I have not publicly connected myself with the "Moral Daily Advertiser," but with the "Journal of Public Morals" - a weekly of the thorough stamp. I send you a copy.

Better still. I shall start, in a few days, should Providence permit, "The Emancipator," a weekly Anti-Slavery paper, taking the highest ground. I do not know that it would be good policy to mention it yet, however, in yours.

The friends here are in good heart. The Lord God is evidently with us. He is raising up helpers every day. My prayer is that they may be all good men and true:— but I need hardly pray so for the Lord God will give us none others.

I have a great deal to say to you, but this is the third letter I have written you since you were with me. From two I have received not one word. ~~from two of them.~~
I hope you will hasten a reply to this.

In haste

Charles M. Emerson

Mrs. Lloyd Garrison,
